CoSoSys releases My Endpoint Protector for the Mac

Posted by Dennis Sellers Jul 16, 2009 at 9:00am

CoSoSys has released My Endpoint Protector for Mac. This device control and data loss prevention service for Mac users and network administrators offers the ability to proactively manage device control use and prevent data theft, data loss and data leakage.

"Dictionary and thesaurus are integrated!"

- Paul Ingraham

It enables centralized device management for networks with Mac OS X and Windows (XP, Vista, 7) computers. My Endpoint Protector for Mac allows system administrators to proactively manage device use for a safe and secure working environment with portable devices. It helps companies:

- Monitor, control or block the use of portable USB, Firewire devices and CD/DVD use;
- Centrally manage all protected Macs and PCs online;
- Grant granular permissions to specific USB storage devices;
- Save time by requiring no server installation (Software as a Service model);
- Enforce offline protection when computers aren't connected to the Internet.

My Endpoint Protector is available as a subscription service, with introductory prices as low as US$2 per Mac per month. A free 10-day trial subscription for three computers (Mac or PC) is available here.
